

Catching Up with Taylor Wright

Taylor has just finished her first year at the University of North Dakota where she is double majoring in Elementary and Middle school education. She was involved in the marching band, hockey pep band and the rugby team, which she was dared to join by her roommate.

The best part about freshman year was all the amazing people she met through band and rugby. Worst part was having fire alarms at 1AM in the dorms. Being away at college Taylor did miss seeing her dog every day and family dinners but didn't mind being away from the chores that come with living at home.

This summer Taylor is working full time at Emerson on the production floor and babysitting on the weekends. Taylor leaves for school at the end of July to start Resident Assistant(RA) training for the next school year (This means free housing next year!!!) Taylor is excited to start her second year at UND!